CREATION NATION CREATIVITY AWARDS!

What is LEGO® Creation Nation? Launched in 2007, Creation Nation is a campaign to underscore the importance of creativity in adults and kids alike. It is a program to unearth, celebrate and cultivate lifelong creativity. Last year, some of the Creation Nation highlights included a kick-off building challenge in Washington D.C. where kids and parents contributed to building a 2 million-brick map of the United States; the launch of the Creativity Awards (see below); and creation of the destination website for learning about creativity at home, in school and in the workplace at www.LEGOcreationNation.com.

CREATION NATION

Be Rewarded For Being Creative!

As part of its Creation Nation campaign, in 2007 The LEGO Company launched the first annual Creativity Awards, designed to recognize creative kids by granting them $5,000 to fund any creative pursuit. Last year, the winners ranged from musicians to junior philanthropists to budding engineers.

The LEGO Company is pleased to announce that its Creativity Awards are back again in 2008. Kids ages 6-13 are invited to submit their creative stories for consideration. Simply print, complete and mail the entry form found in the Creativity Awards section of www.LEGOcreationNation.com or on the Club page of www.LEGO.com. Tell us how you are creative for a chance to win your own creativity fund, and then use it to record your own CD, make a mini movie, buy art supplies, write a book, or do anything your creative heart desires!

PARENTS: Entry rules, deadlines and more information can be found online at www.LEGOcreationNation.com!

THE CREATION NATION IN ACTION

Everyone is creative in their own way. Here are two live examples of creativity in action; these are true members of the LEGO Creation Nation.

Teen Cameron Kruse Invents a New Way to Mud a Baseball

All baseballs in the big leagues get rubbed in mud before game time, which de-glosses the balls and makes them easier for pitchers to grip. Though batboys have been mudding baseballs by hand since the 1950s, Colorado Springs Sky Sox batboy Cameron Kruse created a better way: a mudding robot. Made from LEGO products, Cameron's bot does the job in 30 seconds – a quarter of the time it takes to do it by hand. And the mud is spread more evenly, too. Cameron's machine has won engineering prizes and garnered attention from the major and minor leagues. Who knows what this creative sports-lover will do next!

Duff Goldman, Food Network Personality and Devoted LEGO Enthusiast

In addition to owning and operating Baltimore, Maryland-based Charm City Cakes, Food Network personality Duff Goldman is also a sculptor, artist, musician – and dedicated LEGO fan. In fact, it was Goldman's early years of building and rebuilding with LEGO bricks that helped inspire his creative career choice. That, coupled with a welding know-how, enabled him to turn cake-baking on its ear and make cakes that are beautiful, challenging, and as out-of-the-ordinary as possible! This Ace of Cake's advice to aspiring creative artists? "Nobody can change the world by following the rules!"
